"Producers of Plants that grow and bloom"

Special Information

Read Before Ordering

PRICES named in this catalog cover packing and delivery charges to your door or nearest express office. If by any chance the plants sent you are not satisfactory or do not reach you in the best condition, write us your complaint immediately. We want only satisfied customers.

GRADE OF STOCK For Bearded Iris, sturdy single rhizomes will be furnished. For Japanese and Beardless Iris, strong divisions with a good root system.

For Peonies, healthy 3 to 5 eye divisions, the best size for everyone to plant.

For Hardy Perennials, one year field clumps or well established potted plants.

SHIPMENTS Where no instructions accompany order as to method of shipping they will be sent by express or parcel post (insured) as seems most desirable.

ORDERS You will want your plants as early as they are in proper condition to ship. The best time for transplanting Bearded Irises is after they are through flowering in July or August and shipments on the tall bearded, pumila and intermediate classifications will be made at that time, on up to late fall. Beardless and Japanese Irises should not be transplanted until early fall, usually after September 15th and shipments will be made at that time and until the ground freezes. Hardy Perennials and Peonies will be shipped any time after September 15th until the ground freezes.

LABELING Every variety is separately marked with a copper wired label and our careful method of packing insures plants reaching destination in good condition. Every item named in this catalog should be given a light mulch or protection the first winter planted to prevent it being heaved out of the ground by freezes or thaws.

GUARANTEE Every variety is guaranteed absolutely true to name, and we exercise the greatest care in getting them out. All shipments are guaranteed to arrive in a satisfactory condition. Our guarantee ceases when the plants reach you in good condition. We make no guarantee covering the successful culture of plants after they leave our nursery. (Substitutions are made only by permission or request)

TERMS Cash must accompany orders, remittances to be made by postoffice money orders, drafts or express money orders; currency can usually be sent with safety, although there is some risk in so doing. C. O. D. shipments cannot be made unless accompanied by at least one-half the amount in cash.

We offer you a very complete and interesting collection of fine Irises, including the new varieties of special merit. Ratings as determined by the American Iris Society precede the name. The name of the originator and date of introduction follow immediately after the name of the Iris.

Our 1930 Iris Message

Try a "Recreation Garden" in 1931

A "Recreation Garden" is the best spring tonic and health builder known to man. It is unequaled in its powers to bring healthful relaxation to mind and body and will lead one's thoughts to a greater enjoyment of life.

Golf, tennis and kindred games provide healthful exercise alone, but a "Recreation Garden" does double duty as it will help to keep the doctor away and enhance the setting of the home, presenting an appearance of prosperity and permanence which is a decided advantage in a commercial way.

An hour or two in the golden sunshine each day, delighting in the dainty and ethereal beauty, the bewitching and elusive coloring of marvelous Irises, Peonies and colorful Perennials is the most wonderful invigorator on earth. You can revel in their exotic loveliness, as the gorgeous new and improved varieties lend themselves to a skillful blending of color harmony, creating a picture of rare loveliness.

Modern homes demand modern gardening; hence, unique and unusual plants are an absolute necessity. The world has been scoured for noteworthy material and we offer you the most useful and desirable new introductions. They are readily adapted to the small city garden, as they just naturally lend themselves to landscape effects, whether the space be large or small; in borders or in beds; in rockeries or about the lawn; in broad masses or in tiny nooks, they are both graceful and decorative.

The Iris is a most magnificent and satisfactory hardy flower, as it requires no special care and will grow in practically any soil. It will withstand extreme heat, cold and drought. It will flower over a long period of time and the first cost is nominal. Such a combination of virtues is difficult to surpass.

Try "Garden Recreation" and be especially generous in your use of splendid Irises. Their marvelous colorings, which seem to reflect the sky and sunshine, will produce a picture about your home of exquisite charm.

Planting and Culture

A dry sunny location will produce the best Bearded Iris, but they will thrive in any good garden soil that is well drained.

Plant very shallow, so the top of the rhizome is just below the surface of the ground. It is wise to cover them with a light mulch the first winter to prevent them heaving entirely out of the ground on account of the frequent freezes and thaws. Water once when planting to firm the soil around the rhizome. A light application of lime added each year will prove very beneficial and when the soil needs fertilizer, a dressing of bone meal is sufficient. Avoid manure and over-watering. Keep the plantings free from weeds by frequent but shallow cultivation.

The best time for planting Irises is after they are through flowering in July and August; this enables the plants to become well established before winter comes and insures blooming the first year. To get best results, the roots should be dug and divided every three or four years.

Most beardless Irises (classified under Miscellaneous Species and Varieties) object to lime, preferring a more acid and rich soil. They also thrive in damp locations, if the rhizomes are above the level of the standing water. The Sibericas and Orientalis should never be limed. The Spuria group, Monspur and Shelford Giant do well in cultivated soil, liking both fertilization and lime. Tectorum must have a dry location in the full sun. Pseudoacorus will do well in any location but thrives especially in wet places.

Tall Bearded Irises

Bloom Usually Through May and June

In the following lists, we give the name of the originator and the year of introduction.

Terms used in the description, "S" refers to the three upstanding petals—the standards. "F" to the three lower petals—the falls. A "self" color has the same color in both standards and falls as in Dream. A "bicolor" has standards of one shade and falls of another shade, sometimes in the same color, usually darker as B. Y. Morrison. A plicata is usually a white Iris, the edges of which are lined, flushed or dotted with color, as in Mme. Chereau and Princess Osra.

Selected Peonies Ideal Companions to Irises.

Miscellaneous Species and Varieties

Under this heading, we have grouped several classes of Irises, most of which are beardless. All of those named except Amas, Kochii and Tectorum are tall growing, with graceful grass-like foliage and large striking flowers in pure colors without ugly markings or veinings. Some of them will grow in very wet locations, in fact Pseudoacorus and Versicolor will thrive in running water. Tectorum is used extensively in Japan for thatching roofs, where it grows and blooms profusely.

All of them are well adapted for cutting as the substance is very lasting.

Note special soil and planting conditions on page 2.

75 AMAS—S. bright blue. F. deep violet-purple. Flowers very large, of fine texture and great substance. Each 25c

AUREA—Golden yellow; prefers a loamy soil, not too dry. Each 50c

JAPANESE IRISES (Kaempferi)

Colorful - Striking - Artistic - Distinctive

Their magnificence is indescribable as the great size of the flowers is noteworthy and their wonderful coloring seems to embrace every tint and shade in the rainbow, forming the most vivid and fascinating combinations. A mass of them in bloom is a most gorgeous sight as their striking beauty and strange oriental flowers can never be forgotten.

Their tall slender bladed deep green foliage is graceful and decorative and lends itself beautifully to landscape effects. They are fascinating planted around the garden pool or in front of tall growing shrubbery or in mass where they present a picture as richly hued as a marvelous tapestry.

They come into bloom usually in July and the secret of successful growth is to keep the ground well stirred, never allowing it to bake. They will thrive in any garden soil, but to produce the very large flowers should be watered copiously in May and June. Water should never be allowed to stand over the plants for any length of time, especially in winter or it will prove fatal to them.

The latter part of July or August is the best time to set them out and late plantings should be protected by a light mulch to prevent roots heaving out of the ground.

Fine plants 35c each; 3 for $1.00; 12 for $3.50

ASTARTE—Double beautiful dark violet. Rich.

CIRCE—Double dark violet blue, lined with white.

GOLD BOUND—A fine double, pure white enriched by a creamy glow from the gold banded center.

HERCULE—Double, clear lilac blue, soft and dainty.

ISO-NO-NAMI—Double, soft blue, silvery veins. Distinctive and enchanting.

IPHIGENIE—Deep Chinese lilac.

KOKO-NO-IRO (Purple and Gold)—Enormous double flowers, often ten inches across. Early and free blooming. Rich, violet purple with white petaloids tipped violet. The conspicuous golden throat extends outward in sharp bluish white rays.

MAHOGANY—Purple mahogany red. Large double flowers latest to bloom. The erect petals are prettily crested.

MONIJI-NO-TAKI—Bright rose with deeper markings. An unusual and unique coloring.

PROSPERPINE—Single, bright rich blue produced by sanding of velvety blue on white.

REINE DES BULGARES—Deep blue shading to light blue with white veins. A very shapely grower and free bloomer.

UCHIU (Universe)—Dainty sky blue with golden and white center. Beautiful six petaled flowers of largest size on very tall stems; of wonderful lasting texture, which greatly prolongs the blooming season.
